MEMORY OF ATHERTON

Pay Highest Tribute.

(From Monday's daily.)

"He was a man who never did a wrong thing, nor ever gave to a subordinate a direction to do wrong."

Such high praise was given the late Joseph B. Atherton yesterday by a man that was in him, day by day."

The services were led by J. P. Cooke, who succeeded Mr. Atherton in the ner in later years. "I knew Mr. Ather-presidency, and who spoke with great ton," he said, "not so well, perhaps, fervor of the man who is gone. The services began with prayer offered by W. A. Bowen, who had been the cashier of the firm of Castle & Cooke, long ago, Castle & Cooke, and in later days a partner of that firm, of which Mr. Atherton was for so long the head. The prayer itself was a tribute to the man whom all mourned

Ther Mr. Cooke announced that the lesson of the service would be from that sadly sweet chapter of First Cor-inthians, which is known as the death chapter, but which is so wonderfully consoling to humanity in the last affliction. "We have come together," Mr. Cooke said, "to honor the memory Mr. Cooke said, to hollor the memory decision. He decided—and after that of a man we all loved. For three terms he was the president of our society, in the way of right, always."

Many others of those present at the when he was too ill really to do the work, but because he thought it was his duty to accept it, and because there ound no younger member who would take it. I admit that it is with considerable trepidation that I have taken up the work that has fallen from his able hands. He was a man who did well whatever his hands found to do, a man whose whole life was full of love for his kind, a man who showed his love to God by his love for his fellowman,"

The president of the Y. M. C. A. then introduced P. C. Jones, who had been a school fellow of Mr. Atherton in Boston sixty years ago, and who spoke from a heart filled with love for him who had endeared himself to all Honolulu by his noble life.

"We were at school together in Boston, sixty years ago. Mr. Atherton and I," said Mr. Jones. "We were born in that town, within a few blocks of each other. We attended the same school, and we went into business at the same time. For sixty years he was in my mind, more or less, all the time, and in those days of our young manhood in Boston I used to meet him every day of my life. He was interested in religlous work, even then, though I was not. I came to Honolulu in 1857. Mr. Atherton, who was of delicate constitution-there was consumption in his family-was compelled finally to leave the rigorous New England climate and he came here in 1858. He went into the employ, first of D. C. Waterman, a little later going with the firm of Cas-tle & Cooke, of which he afterwards became the head. He had been a close communion Baptist in Boston, but there was no Baptist Church here when came, and he allied himself at once with the old Fort Street Church. that church his agency drew me to think upon religion, and I may say that his influence finally made me a Christian, In all my dealings with him, in religious work, in business, as fellow members on many boards of trustees, his influence upon me was always a good influence. I loved him. If any man in To All Points in the United States the world ever had the true Christian and Canada, via Victoria and spirit, he had it. He was no fair weather Christian. His faith sustained him through all trials, and brought him triumphant. In all my knowledge of him, though I have seen him aroused is developing a high degree of executive to righteous wrath. I never knew him to give way to anger. He was a man who had the love of God in his heart, if ever a man had. He showed it in that great charity which led him to help his win and Chief Engineer Williams of did in the way of charity. No man ever

I have ever known, and I have known many men. Above all, he was a man faithful to every trust. To the young men here, I do not say that Mr. Atherton was a brilliant man. But let those young men here learn from his life the lesson of that faithfulness that will always lead men to success. When he went to work for a firm he did not count his salary as the only reward for his labor. He was loyal in faith to his employers, and his interest he made their interest. And he became the head of the firm. That is an example that all young men may follow with

For twenty-five years I have been identified with the firm, and in all that time I never received an order from Mr. Atherton to do a wrong thing. He was a man whom I never knew to do a wrong thing. He was always cheerful, even in the darkest times for he had the lever Greek times, for he had the love of God in his heart. BIG RESULTS AT PUUNENE MILL

Twice a day the air of central Maui is thrilled with the hoarse cry of the huge steam whistle at Puunene, bringing with it the storied picture of ordered by Judge Humphreys: great machinery at work, of long cane trains bringing grist to its mill and ong sugar trains carrying away its golden fruition, of hurried and busy men, and the swift transition of wayag cane into sacks of sugar.

The detailed results of this work are no less interesting than a contemplation of general results. Last week the surcharged by decree of First Circuit mill turned out 1506 tons of sugar in a six days run, or 251 tons per day. These figures alone give but a faint conception of the work done. Between 500 and 600 cars of cane are cut and brought to the mill daily, and over three train loads each containing 1,000 sacks of sugar daily leave the mill for the wharf. If the cane ground daily were made up in one train load, it would be more than a mile long. Those only who are familiar with the process of bringing cane to mills can fully appreciate the herculean labor involved in handling this amount of cane. The output of sugar at Puunene for the last month alone reached the enormous amount of 6,292 tons, a task never before accomplished by any sugar mill on earth Mr. Frank Baldwin is acting as manager of the plantation during the absence of his father, Hon. H. P. Baldfellow men always. No man knows, Puunene Mill, the former striving to no man will ever know, how much he land more cane at the mill than Mr. went to him, asking help, and needing it, who found that help refused.

There has already been some discussion of the matter with Governor Dole, but no definite conclusion has so far been reached.

Honolulu, April 8, 1903. Mr. Henry Smith, Master in Chancery,

Dear Sir: The Trustees Estate James Robinson's annual statement of accounts ending March 12, 1903, having been referred to you to audit, and report on same at an early date.

We would say that the inventory of the property still shows $170,000.00 of the Hilo Railroad Co.'s bonds remain-Court, Judge Humphreys presiding, at the passing of the last annual accounts, ordering them to dispose of same and invest in other securities. We wish to say that we have not ignored the order of the court, but have used our, best endeavors to dispose of same, and on account of the state of our local market during the last twelve months we were compelled to look to San Francisco to same and would report that nego tiations are now going on with a banking institution of San Francisco whose representative sent down here, returned a few weeks ago to make report on the Hilo Railroad Co.'s and other Hawalian Island properties and securities, and fully expect to sell the bonds in full without loss.

MERCHANTS WANT THE TOURISTS

Plans for Speedy Action by Its Committee.

Exploitation of Honolulu as a tourist center was brought before the Chamber of Commerce and the Merchants' Association Saturday and strong lan-guage, which may lead to decided action, was uttered in both bodies. The Merchants declared that in the event of failure to come to an amicable agree-ment with the Shippers' Wharf Committee, then they must take up the matter independently and push it through. The whole subject was brought up in the following letter from Chairman F. C. Smith of the Tourist Joint Committee, submitted to the two bodies:

"At a meeting of the Joint Tourist Committee, held on April 1, the chair-man was instructed to notify the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants' Association that the Shippers' Wharf Committee report that they have no funds available for the use of this committee.

"You have selected this Joint Tourist Committee for a specific object of the utmost public importance. Its proposed work appeals to every individual prop-erty owner, merchant and those who depend on general and diversified pros-

As soon as the letter from Chairman Smith had been read it was moved in the Chamber to lay it on the table and thank the committee. The fight was made by F. W. Macfarlane, who asked the Shippers' Wharf Committee for information as to what steps were being taken to secure repayment for the Quarantine wharf, and if that money might be had by the Tourist Committee. All that could be learned was that the committee did not feel that the money raised for quarantine purposes could be expended for other purposes. After a deal of talk on the same lines, on motion of McCandless it was voted Tourist Committee should asked to hold a meeting with the Shippers' Wharf Committee, for the purpose of reaching a joint understanding. this basis the matter was closed for the present in the Chamber.

MERCHANTS WANT ACTION.

As soon as the letter had been read in the Merchants' Association, Mr. Macfarlane told what had been done in the Chamber and declared that in his opinion it was simply a case of whipping the devil around the stump, that it was not the intention of the committee to permit the Tourist Committee to get any of the money, and he favored the pressing of the recommenda-tion of the Governor for an appropriation, and every merchant working for this nucleus for the fund.

C. S. Wight said that the money came from the merchants and he thought the proper course was to make a request and then a demand for the money or a share of it. Macfarlane said that he had tried to get information from that Wharf Committee, and it was useless.

W. W. Hall said that he would favor a trial of the plan to get together first and that failing then the merchants should act. He said that the merchants could refuse to pay the tax, for they had the advice of lawyers to that effect. Wight and Capt. King both took this view and Rothwell made a long, clear statement of the case, saying that there should be an argument presented showing the determination of the merchants and the reasons why the tourist proposals must go through. He also thought further payment of the tax might be the result of the disagree

After further argument it was decided that the committee should be given time for a conference with the shippers, so that action may be had later, the sense being that the mer-chants will take up the subject and handle it, if there is no disposition on the part of the Shippers' Wharf Committee to aid in the work.

Drowned in a Mudhole.

Another report from Hamakua is to been drowned in a mud hole on the government road. Such a condition of legislative investigation. Then if it is found that the fault lies in the failure of the legislature to appropriate sufficient funds there should be no lelay in supplying what is necessary to properly build the road. Appropriating $250,000 for a Honolulu water supply should not be considered for a moment while there are country roads needed .-Hilo Herald

A singular instance of forwarding money by wireless telegraphy, and the first known instance of the kind, recently occurred in Wailuku.
